

A HISTORY

of the Battalion helped in making repairs to a YMCA Camp in Middleboro, Mass. In 1964, RMCB 12 split into two sections for its two-week training period. One group was sent to Guantanamo, Cuba and the other went to Puerto Rico. In 1965 the Battalion was again split, this time into three sections. One section was again sent to "Gitmo," one to the Naval Station at Argentia, Newfoundland, and the third to the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek, Va. During the two-week training period in 1966, the entire Battalion operated as a unit at a Boy Scout Camp in Goshen, Va.

Members of RMCB 12 arrive in Gulfport for two weeks of training

Two members of RMCB 12 discuss construction methods during reserve training in Gulfport

In 1967, the Battalion traveled to Camp Lejeune, N. C. and spent two weeks undergoing military training. In February 1968, RMCB 12 went to Gulfport, Miss. and received technical and crew training.

Greens inspection during reserve training in Gulfport, Miss.

Camp Goshen, Va.